Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood.

And sorry I could not travel both
And be one traveler, long I stood

And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth;

Then took the other,
as just as fair,

And having perhaps the better
claim,
Because it was grassy and wanted
wear;

Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same,

And both that morning equally lay

In leaves no step had trodden black.

Oh, I kept the first for another day!

Yet knowing how way
leads on to way,
I doubted if I should ever come back.

Mr. Charles N. LaPrade

So many roads go far and wide,
None are for all, and we cannot stay.
Whenever our lifeways must divide
The way we go, let it be with pride
That we make our choice of the next highway.

Though the road and the time and the men we meet
Help make the traveling hard or fair,
Though there be triumph or defeat,
Pain or pleasure, trust or deceit,
The difference is never wholly there —

The difference is seldom in what we choose,
Nor the friends or foes in the changing scene,
Much lies in the way we each refuse
To blame circumstance, win or lose,
Walking the highway with hearts serene.

To one who has traveled many roads, Robert Frost's poem, "The Road Not Taken," can be extremely symbolic; it can provide a feeling of gratitude for things accomplished, or it can provide a feeling of remorse for not having traveled on a divergent road during one's lifetime and embarked on a different career.

For a youthful secondary school graduate there are many roads to take today. There are bewildering avenues in our complicated society which leave one with a variety of difficult choices. One road may hold the promise of security and safety but may not have stimulating undergrowth around the bend; a second may provide a sense of service but may prove to be dangerous and not lend itself to an orderly, well-regulated life; a third may perhaps be grassy, fresh, and exciting . . . but unused . . . and with hidden dangers!

Which road to take? Which path for our young people imbued with eagerness to start a new stage of life?

The answer lies within the young graduate. None of us can correctly direct you to the exact path. You will perhaps stumble as you attempt various roads in an effort to find the best one . . . the best future for yourself and the most rewarding career.

But does it really matter? One who travels many roads in early life eventually brings a maturity and background to his final career. It is the experimentation which makes us grow, the experience which makes us ready to decide.

The difference is not in the roads; it is within ourselves.

Mr. Thomas A. Wood

"The deadline for the first sixteen pages is Monday." . . . "Where's the layout for the play?" . . . "Where did you say you put that picture?"

Anyone who happened across a yearbook production meeting during the past year might well have thought that coordinating the compilation of our annual was a difficult project. In part it was, but our labor was more than offset by the memories our efforts brought to mind. This book is an attempt to recreate the episodes and events that spawned those memories.

As we pass through the doors of West Boylston High School, let us all look forward to a new and exciting world — one that will be enriched by our membership and efforts.

To our fellow classmates we offer our sincerest wishes for success in all their endeavors, for their lasting good health, and for friendship . . . always.

From Among Us

Fast as the rolling seasons bring
The hour of fate to those we love,
Each pearl that leaves the broken string
Is set in Friendship's crown above.
As narrower grows the earthly chain,
The circle widens in the sky;
These are our treasures that remain,
But those are stars that beam on high.

ACTIVITY AND ORGANIZATION

The Age of Aquarius

The Class of 1972 chose "The Age of Aquarius" as the theme for its Junior Prom. On a Friday evening, May 7th, 1971, the never-to-be-forgotten affair took place in a beautifully transformed gym. Under the direction of Mr. Griffin and General Chairman Lisa Walsh, the night turned out to be a great success.

Chris Sutton's orchestra set the mood as the Grand March circled the giant statue of Aquarius. The lovely Lindsay Crossman, escorted by Bruce Bancroft, was chosen Queen. The class congratulates the Prom Committee for a truly unforgettable evening.

On April 29, 1971, new members were installed in the National Honor Society. As the audience stood, both old members and inductees marched down the aisle and to their seats to the strains of Gaudeamus Igitur. Mr. Wood addressed the inductees and administered the oath.

The candle-lighting ceremony followed. Upon the stage stood a lighted candle representing Knowledge. Four other candles, representing Character, Scholarship, Leadership, and Service, were lighted by the officers: Carolyn Cheever (president), Dale Powers (vice president), Debbie French (secretary), and Cindy Bancroft (treasurer).

A banquet honoring the Society was later held at the Franklin Manor Restaurant in West Boylston.

"O Men, Amen!," this year's Senior play, was successful both as an entertaining and fund-raising venture. It concerned a girls' sorority in which the members were forbidden to accept dates. Hilarious complications resulted from a young man's attempts to discredit the group with information that he learned while wearing various disguises. The plot was finally resolved . . . with love conquering all.

The Music Man

In March 1971, the Music Department again presented a fine spring concert. It was the result of many hours of hard work and much patience. Congratulations to the Chorus, Band, Stage Band, and all individual acts for their fine performance.

This year, as usual, Mr. Maynard has done a great job with the Chorus, Band, and Stage Band. In December, the second annual Christmas Assembly for parents and friends was held. The Chorus spiritedly sang the Hallelujah Chorus to a standing audience; the band played a lovely medley of Christmas songs; and the stage band entertained the audience prior to the beginning of the program. Special thanks to Mr. Maynard for another job well done.

QUIZ TEAM

R. Cheever, G. Berry, D. Smith, Advisors: Mr. Traver, Mr. Lordge.

This year West Boylston participated with forty-one other schools in the Worcester County High School Quiz. The program, aired on Channel 27, was scheduled for Saturdays at 6 PM. West Boylston won their first two matches with Clinton High School and St. Bernard's High School, which led them to the semi-finals in February. Mr. Traver and Mr. Lordge worked hard coaching the team and held their practice sessions against a team comprised of faculty members.

Friendship is caring for someone else as much as you care for yourself. Friendship is doing for others, and getting as much pleasure out of it, as you would do for yourself. Friendship is love.

Friendship is a prize to be treasured above all others.

Friendship is abstract, and cannot be grasped except in the hearts and minds of those who share it.

That love is all there is, is all we know of love.

Let us appreciate the world for what it is and strive to make it into the world it could be.

Peace is the lack of conflict.

The future of the world is in the hands of the young. It is ours to shape and mold as we see fit.

A friendship that like love is warm; A love like friendship steady.

Friendship is sharing both the good times, and the bad.

Love is caring more for another person than for yourself.

Death is the total happiness of life. A time of rest, quiet inner and outer peace. A time to close your eyes and sigh.

If a man does not keep pace with his companions perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears however measured or far away.

For how many things, which for our own sake we never do, do we perform for the sake of our friends.

The thoughts on these pages, although not all in our own words, express the way many of us feel upon graduation.

OUR HISTORY

As we entered the corridors of West Boylston High School, we were small in size but substantial in the vocal department. There was no doubt in our minds that the Class of 1972 would be remembered for many years to come. A new change was felt. We had progressed from cootie holes, fishnets, and retentions to no dress code, smoking areas, and detentions.

Several days after our boisterous entry into W.B.H.S., our eighth-grade class was summoned sternly to the auditorium. It was made known to us, and far from subtly, that we were a cut below the expectations of the administration. As punishment for our rowdiness, our class was not allowed to elect class officers. Although our prides were morbidly crushed, we quickly resumed our old ways.

We had an interesting assortment of teachers in the eighth grade. Although we all strove to excel in Miss Cogswell's reading class, the highest mark anyone could get was an "M." This did not stand for marvelous, as we explained to our parents. It stood for mediocre, and it still stands. Another class we all enjoyed was Mr. Fisher's course in Earth Science. We were all expected to gather a rock collection. As it turned out, half the class brought in pieces of tar that they had dug up at the bus stop that morning. To add to our cultural education, Mr. Maynard introduced us to such musical classics as "The Grand Canyon Suite," "The Sorcerer's Apprentice," and "Abdul and the Night Visitors." These could only be appreciated in total darkness while watching a corresponding filmstrip. And of course no one can forget those fantastic plans Miss Nowak always had, the ones we could never use because of, well, our class.

Our Freshman year was truly an unforgettable experience. In Mr. White's English Class, we spent four months studying "Romeo and Juliet" and an equal amount of time reading Lord of the Flies. We always left that class in a state of dizziness because Mr. White always gave his lectures as he ran around the classroom. We shall never forget Mr. Sullivan's "pop" quizzes because the quiz questions made up the tests and they, in turn, made up the midyear and final. How many of you still remember the four city-states of ancient Greece? The fun class, that year, was Mr. Moynihan's Algebra I. Every Friday, we would play a math game called Quizmo. In order to win, one had to enthusiastically scream out "QUIZMO." Stacey and Paula never won because they couldn't make enough noise to be heard.

Although our Sophomore year was not one for profits, we did have many adventures: A flood of tears on the bus while returning from viewing "Romeo and Juliet," Miss Zottoli saying, "Please, if you have any questions, ask me — Please," and Mr. Mentzer's frequent cardiac arrests after experiencing a class with the "Walsh gang." The highlight of the year came when we made geometric mobiles in Mr. Perry's class and had them judged by Mr. Moynihan. Mr. Anderson caused us to buckle down and study when he made us memorize every European country and its capital.

The first big event of our Junior year came in October when we held a car wash at the Town Operations Center's parking lot. All went well until it began snowing. Although no one felt like washing cars in such freezing weather, the undertaking was a success. We also decided to sell reflecting triangles which are useful to those who get stuck on roadsides. They are also useful in demonstrating theorems in geometry.

By this time our teachers had gotten to know us quite well. Mr. Begley's girls remember him informing them that he had something that had to be typed by next period for some other teacher. Everyone recalls Miss Salmon reading off dictation saying, "My girls aren't mischievous, they're insane!" Mr. Donohue always had "another factory movie" to show to his boys. Mrs. Zwiep said she was going to put blinders on her innocent girls so that they would not peek. Mr. Mentzer gave us many interesting lectures on driver safety, even though he started every sentence with "I've seen it happen time and time again . . ." The Junior Prom, based on the theme "Aquarius," climaxed our Junior year in a glorious fashion.

As we think over our senior year, we recall a lot of accomplishments that have been made. Students are allowed to smoke during their lunch period, we are experimenting with a modified open campus, refreshments are available during X period, students can participate in intra-mural sports, and both the dress code and the projects fair have been abolished. Our student council members deserve the thanks of each of us for all they have done. Many of us do not realize all the work their achievements have entailed. Many new ideas are being proposed to the school committee, so the outlook for future years is very bright. The Senior Play, "O'Men, Amen," got rave reviews, and the profits helped to defray the costs of our senior activities.

True to form we were original throughout the year, with new plans for the yearbook and new ideas for class day. As we conclude this review of our high school years, we know for sure no matter where our endeavors may take us, to business or to college, we will never forget our experiences at old, W.B.H.S.

For the second year in a row the team went undefeated in the Southern Worcester County League. They also finished third in the Wachusett Invitational and fifth in the State Meet. The team graduates only its three senior captains and looks forward to another fine season in 1972.

SOCCER

Under the direction of Coach Donohue and tri-captains, R. Evangelista, M. Allen, and J. Pustis, the soccer team got off to a great start, winning three of their first five games. Unfortunately as the year progressed, the team went into a slump and lost seven of their last eight games. They wound up the season with a 4 and 9 record, with three more wins than last year. Next year looks promising with several key players returning.

FOOTBALL

This was the second year the West Boylston football team played a varsity schedule. Under the direction of head coach, Mr. Roach, and his assistant, Mr. Priestley, this year's team won only one game yet provided many exciting moments. Although the team will lose nine senior players, next year's team is looking forward to a fine season.

This year's squad consisted of 4 juniors, 3 sophomores, and two freshmen. Members were: N. Bohlin, L. Mulcahy, D. Oppici, K. Ramsdell, R. Cormier, S. Goodnow, L. Hebb, J. Paulin, and S. MacNeil.

BASKETBALL CHEERLEADERS

The 1970-71 cheerleading squad worked hard all season, with good school spirit prevailing at every game. With several new members, the squad coached by Mrs. White, consisted of 1 senior, 3 juniors, 2 sophomores, and 3 freshmen.

For the first time in many years, Coach Garofoli found himself without a "superstar." However, the team made up for this with the hustle of a true team. Senior co-captains Steve Flynn and Kevin Marrone took charge of six seniors and seven juniors. Performance by the starting five was excellent and they received good relief from a strong bench. Coach Garofoli calls them "the best team I've ever coached."

PROPHECY

To celebrate her ten year old dictatorship, President of Oakdale Marcia Bonci has decided to get the lovable, laughable Class of '72 back together again. Secretary Sheila Castongnay enthusiastically types out the invitations, and efficient Phil Noyes licks the stamps.

Five years later, Post-Master General Michael Triola has finally matched up the zip-codes, so the invitations are sent out. The formerly animalistic, but now impeccably cultured class stampeded from all directions and in as many varied ways to their beloved ghost town alma-mater, W.B.H.S.

The first arrivals are the alumni from the immediate area. Arriving by donkey cart, we have Jonathan Smith and Jeff Deyo. Lynne Wyman and Stacey Wagner formerly of W.B. arrive early to set up their world-famous kissing booth.

Oakdale Airport has just received word of the hijacking of a glider near Sing-Sing from news reporter Nancy Rawson. It is hoped that it will not interfere with the landing of the super big jumbo jet, more affectionately known as El Large-o. It has been taken out of retirement in order to carry the European elite of our class.

In the plane, novice stewardess Ona Oman politely gallops down the aisle announcing the surplus of "Coffee, tea, or bananas." In first class, we find David Smith signing teeny bopper autographs while in coach, Tommy "Teen-Angle" Spellman signs Patti Ela's autograph book. The attractive stewardess in coach is Paulette L'Ecuyer. Dick Cheever, who is known in the inner circles as "the only pilot who can fly with or without wings," is flying the crate with the aid of co-pilot Ron Arslen, who has a bad habit of getting lost in the fog. In the lounge, we have Nancy Barnett getting thrown out of the plane by Candy Hodges. Nancy, however, parachutes to safety. I wish that I could say the same for Kevin Antonio, Linda Kirk, and Mark Allen, who were sucked out of the plane at the same time.

Meanwhile, reports are coming in about the Sing-Sing hijacking. Oh horrors! The glider is going to land at Oakdale Airport. Flash! The hijackers are Chuck Nasis, Daryl Macklin, and Stephen Messier and they are holding sky marshals Jo-Anne Scales and Holly Holden at gunpoint.

Back on El Large-o, the natives are getting restless; so stewards Kevin Lloyd and Danny O'Brien have decided to show the documentary "Mrs. Gagnon gives a tour of the stacks" which was directed by Jeffrey McKeen and stars our own Pam Delong as Mrs. Gagnon and Bill Fidrych as an innocent bystander. Don Gustafson gets airsick and upon thrusting his head out the window spots Roger Buck on the wing going VHOOOOO . . . VROOOOOM . . . As the plane approaches Oakdale, stewardess Joan Leonardi announces to all passengers "Please fasten your seat belts. We will be landing at Oakdale International in a few minutes."

As the plane lands, the chauffeurs jump to attention. The first one in line is Cindy Lawrence, who has gotten to take the Princess of Lebanon Stephanie Boosahda to the school. Peter Kinne who is chauffeur for the McDonalds, Ronald and the former Francine Allen; and the doughboys, Peter Bacchiocchi and the former Virginia McCormick, stand ready.

The El Large-o jet has just landed, and hostesses Marcia Roberts and Kathy Goulding from Kevin Marrone's Main Street Lounge wheel out the stairs. Stewardess Diana Desroches opens the door of El Large-o, and Cindy Fred jumps out yelling C-I-N-D-Y Fred. As custodian John Belluardo sweeps up the pieces of a tattered pompom and one destroyed cheerleader, extra-hand Bill Merritt pushed the stairs five feet closer to the plane. Just then, the Arkansas Lassies break the barricade and stampede onto the field to greet their idol, Steve Nelson.

Look! The hijacked glider has just missed the runway and slid into Joey Giobellina's farm. Within minutes, everything is under control as Oakdale's meter maid Barbara Fagerquist and her assistant Maureen Banks hurry across the field and arrest the three marauders.

Suddenly, all eyes turn toward the baggage compartment of El Large-o as stowaway Gary Hall jumps out of a trunk gasping for air. As Gary is turning blue, Cindy Lonnroth administers mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Gary staggers from the field to the terminal. As everything returns to normal, the guests begin to make their way toward the school.

The caravan of limousines is escorted by the speedsters of the tricycle club, Scott Holmes and Rickey Evangelista. On the way, they pass Donna Casamassima who is thumbing a ride. After proceeding up Bullitt's Hill, the parade of cars finally makes it to the school. The first one to enter the hallowed halls is Jim Graham who stops to talk with Donna Dumont. At her side sits Rick Benson. Further on, we spot a Nair booth whose demonstrator is none other than John "legs" Harris. We also notice customer Sandy Alish refusing to buy John's product. Disinterested Brian Urquhart suddenly is interested in Paul Nolan's display, and Tracey Wagner's demonstration of cosmetics, concentrating on co-ordinating eye-shadow.

As the guests arrive, they slowly begin to pick up where they left off fifteen years ago. Cathy Ramsdell, who just came back from making the newest version of "Big Red," intently listens to Richard Salluce as he lectures Sheik Byron Fraser, who just rented the Worcester Auditorium for his world-famous collection of harem girls. Trying to be helpful, Mike Harris and Al L'Ecuyer ask Byron if he needs ANY assistance. At the same time, thirty-two year old Bill Bryce is still searching for greener pastures.

Deb Dowgert, who is wearing diamond studded fishnets, stops to chat with Kris Barr, Donna Supernor, and Luann Lamothe, who have just returned from a victorious bout at the Roller Derby. The famous star of stage, screen, and television Betty Ann Peterson gets it together with Sue Shaw, who is late because she couldn't decide what to wear. She informs Bet that Flo Alexander has come down with a sudden case of jungle fatigue. Linette Wilmot is attracted by Karen Keirstead and Linda Leonard's Beauty and Loveliness booth. After pausing for a few minutes, she moves on to the next booth which houses Cheryl Geier's School of Charm.

As "Bull" Belanger and Lindsay Crossman move on to the cafeteria where the banquet is to be held, they are greeted by the "hostess with the mostess" Donna Bullens and her apprentice Sharon Nilsson. Meanwhile, Ken Quist decides to make another mysterious visit to the Boy's Room. As he pushes open the door, out flies John Archambeault, Keith Fancy, and Don Foster screaming, "Who's on duty?" When we return to the cafeteria, it is evident that almost everyone is present, so Reverend Dana Parker begins to give grace. Mid-way through, the reverend is disturbed by a soft buzzing noise, which is coming from the table in the corner where Sheryl Hopper and Peg Morrissey are quickly reminiscing over every date they have had for the past fifteen years. After the reverend finishes grace, caterer Greg Ricardi brings in the meatballs and spaghetti. Waitresses of the year Debbie Bartlett and Sue Lajoie serve the food to the guests. After everything is served, Gary Jacobson signals with his trumpet for the feasting to begin with his rendition of "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

As the lights dim, the entertainment side of the banquet is ready to commence. When the spotlight is turned on the stage, M. C. Dana Oppici gets the crowd into the mood with a few jokes. All of a sudden, everything goes dead as Mary Genelli comes out in a majorette uniform, in order to do a few tricks with the baton. Steve Flynn is so bored that he begins to throw sugar cubes into his glass of water trying to get a swish shot, and then decides to throw the sugar cubes into Sue Tivnan's mouth. Steve becomes more interested as Nancy Handy comes out to give an exhibition of interpretative tap dancing. Soon Robert Dazuta and Mike Raczynski discover a great target for the left-over tomatoes from Robert Gambaccini's fruit stand. The last act on the program is the team of "Bubbles La Roue" Bain and "Bunny" Walsh who sing a collection of oldies but goodies. They are accompanied by the "Lusty Latin Lover" George Renzoni on the mandolin. When the entertainment ends, everyone returns to eating the food and drinking Stanley Kokernak's "surprise punch." After a few glasses of the "surprise punch," Loraine Russell, Joyce Rayworth, and Sue Haapakoski jump upon the table and begin to dance.

The highlight of the evening is about to begin. The dynamic duo Steve Bjorklund and Bruce Bjorklund wheel in the huge anniversary cake which has fifteen candles on it, one for each glorious year we have been out of high school. As David Yahnian douses the lights, Greg Turner and Keith Mooradian run in with torches and light all the candles. Just then, the top of the cake explodes and out pops Linda Veshi. Bystanders Diane Beauregard and Debbie Zona try their best to hold back George Berry from the cake but are unsuccessful. George later informs us that he has acquired a sudden love for mocha-prune frosting.

From then on in, it is chaos. Everyone begins to dance. The music is provided by Patti Naughton's all-girl band "The Buckwheats," which features Marian Allen and Heather Smith. Orderly Ronnie Rosenlund and Aide Paula Bossi watch over the slowly moving couples, looking for future prospects for their Old Folks Home.

As the clock strikes midnight, janitor Corey Pasquale pushes the table together in order to make a ramp for "The First Annual Class of '72 Beauty Pageant." The only candidates for the title are Jean Leonaridi, Pam Heath, and Carol Geneva. The judges are John McManus and Mark Johnson. After carefully looking over the contestants, John and Mark unanimously proclaim Jean Miss Class of '72. When reporter Kevin Smith asks them why they made the choice they did, they say it is her perfect posture. Treasurer Paula Belacki then informs the crowd that Jean will reign as queen until the next reunion. She remarks that there may never be another reunion because our class is once again bankrupt.

As the sun begins to rise, the few remaining people are helped to their feet and ushered out the door. From the look of the room, the banquet is a complete success. Tables are overturned, decorations are hanging off the wall, and the remainder of the food is found everywhere. Interior decorators Carol Severence and Gale Mosman are asked to change the cafeteria back to its old likeness. They both realize its hopeless, but agree to try.

Everyone bids farewell as they prepare to leave. The students who brought their children have to go to the gym where they have been cordially entertained by the antics of West Boylston's very own Bozo Phil Shubert. As the last car drives out of sight, the ghost of W.B.H.S. breathes a sigh of relief and says, "I never saw another class like them, and I hope I never do again."

One may evaluate a person's success by the amount of wealth, fame, or power he has achieved during his lifetime. However, we must realize that everyone does not have the same opportunity, nor the same environment in which to seek these things; therefore we must be wary of such misleading appraisals. Our success in life will be judged by our Creator, who has put us into our life situation, given us all different environments, different intellectual abilities, and different talents.

It only seems reasonable then, that a person's success will be evaluated on the extent to which he has made use of his own natural endowments in serving his fellow man.

— Mr. Bouvier

As an alumni of the West Boylston School System I have found my last four years as an instructor at West Boylston Jr.-Sr. High particularly challenging and rewarding. In part this feeling undoubtedly has been due to my involvement with the members of the Class of 1972.

Four years ago this class began its high school program as energetic and hard-working freshmen. Each year it has grown in knowledge and experience and many members of the class have honored themselves, their class and their school by excellent performances in academic, athletic and altruistic endeavors.

The Class of 1972 can be judged by its individual or group accomplishments, of which a number are especially meaningful to me. One particular achievement was the successful production of their Class Play, O Men, Amen! for which the total devotion of the cast and crew was greatly appreciated.

Other contributions have been made by class members on the fields of athletic competition where effort and fair play were always evident. Still others, recognized or not, have honored their class by quiet study, self-improvement and school loyalty.

Regardless of the individual aspirations of the members of the Class of 1972, they certainly will be remembered for their individuality and spirit. At graduation in June, they will feel a sense of accomplishment and a sense of loss, accomplishment for what they have gained and loss for what they have left behind.

No matter which feeling dominates their memories of the years at West Boylston High School, let one thought go with them — that we have helped to prepare each of them for the years to come and that those valuable associations and experiences at West Boylston High will help each of them to his individual success.

— Mr. White

I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:

Two roads diverged
in a wood and I —

I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.

I think that my junior year ...
e most eventful and dynamic in e way of changes that came over
e. It was all started with Driver l (with Mr. Mentzer), and inuded PSAT's, SAT's, and sudenly where I would go and what I forget those days at WBHS where it all happened.

A business student, Lynn Wyman, says the years went by the same, except, for the senior year. "This year I was able to leave school at 12:30 to go to work."

"I feel this helped me up my studies and also to get out into the work world, and gain my place in society."

"Graduation is advancing rapidly and my plans are for continuing work on a full-time basis. I have been given the opportunity to get seniority on my job and will have experience for better employment."

"I will never forget my years here and will miss the simple days at WBHS."

Chess Tourney

By Don Lamberto

John Swalec, Don Lamberto, and arl Dick finished one, two, three the preliminary chess tourament held recently to pick mpetition for final play with lvanced players. This double imination play was open to all hool students and approximately ? took part.

Mike Aziz, Steve Meyer, and Bill tler were exempted from the eliminary tournament but now eet with the winners for the hool championship.

John Swalec remained unbeaten hile stunning his opponents with attack which defied solving. n Lamberto lost only to Swalec d Carl Dick gained third place on e basis of a flip of a coin after a for third place developed

Typing Contest

Pam Bonci and Pam Migneault represented WBHS as Quinsigamond Community College held its annual typing contest recently. Approximately 50 girls attended, two from each school in Worcester County. Each contestant typed one five minute timing from a straight copy with two errors allowed and one five errors allowed.
